

Readings for next weekend — Fourth Sunday in Ordinary Time

1st reading: Zephaniah 2:3; 3:12-13; 2nd reading: 1 Corinthians 1:26–31; Gospel: Matthew 5:1-12

Come after me, and I will make you fishers of people.

The death of John the Baptist marks a turning point in the ministry of Jesus. John the Baptist's mission to prepare the way has concluded: Jesus' mission must begin in earnest. Likewise, as a Church we must enter into the "substance" of Ordinary Time: the teaching, proclaiming, and curing works of Jesus. So, we return this week to Matthew's Gospel (where we will remain until nearly halfway through the approaching season of Lent) and hear the beginning of Jesus' ministry in Galilee.

The Good news of Jesus starts with an invitation to the first apostles "Come follow me". We are invited to follow Jesus the way this liturgical season, which is far more than an in-between for Christmas, Lent, and Easter. As these apostles come to know Jesus in his ministry and teaching, so will we. (Lenten Reflection Groups, Alpha, Christian Life program) Each teaching from Jesus and each miracle that Jesus works is an invitation to see more clearly who God is for us.

The task for each of us is to welcome Jesus into our day-to-day experiences, that we, in the words of Vatican II's Dogmatic Constitution on the Church says: "may work for the sanctification of the world from within. (Lumen Gentium 31).
